LADIES' HOME JOURNAL PATTERNS

Theatrical Topics of the Day.

"The Servant in the House"
 "The Servant in the House," which is to be presented at the Portsmouth Music Hall next Monday, is a modern comedy that occasionally touches tragic significance.

It tells of three brothers who drift apart in early manhood and who unexpectedly meet again in England one sunny morning in spring. One has become a vicar in the Church of England; the second is a victim of drink and has become a scavenger, and, has become the famous Bishop of Benares.

The scene is laid in the vicar's home, to which places comes the scavenger, or the Drain-Man, as he is called in the play with bitter hatred in his heart for his clergyman brother who has kept his (the Drain-Man's) little child away from him. There the Drain-Man meets his other brother, the Bishop of Benares, who is disguised as an Oriental butler.

While waiting for the vicar the Drain-Man becomes interested in the disguised bishop's description of the church he has built in India—a "building whose terrible spans and arches are the joined hands of comrades." He is gradually influenced by his unknown brother and, turned from his revenging thoughts finds pleasure in his work, in "cleaning up the muck of the world," as he phrases it. Others, too, are changed by the subtle influence of the strange butler, who preaches the gospel of brotherly love.

The play has created a sensation in other cities because the character of the disguised bishop of Benares is easily recognizable as a reincarnation of Christ. The accepted likenesses of the Savior are followed by Clarke in impersonating his role, but the stage figure is so reverentially treated and is invested with such graceful charm and dignity that there is no shock whatever to even the most sensitive religious souls.

"The Old Homestead" on Thursday
 Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead" has been played continuously for a longer period than any play ever staged in this country. Some seasons it has been played by as many as three companies. It has been seen in every city of any consequence in this country and has been played in New York more than a thousand times. Plays of great merit usually last for five or six seasons and then go into the stock houses for occasional representation. The one exception has been Mr. Thompson's play, and it has been on the go now many years, this being the twenty-fourth season. "The Old Homestead" did but little traveling during the first two years of its existence it having remained in and about Boston for that period after its initial presentation at the Boston Theatre in April, 1886. It was not until after its three years' run at the Academy of Music in New York City that it entered upon its perambulations. The first traveling season of the company was one of extraordinary length, they remaining out continuously for ninety weeks. During that time the company traveled 35,000 miles or one and a half times the circumference of the globe. All parts of the country were touched. The demand for the play became still heavier as its fame grew apace, and Mr. Thompson soon had three companies before the public. It would be next to an impossibility to give anything like an accurate distance of the territory over which the home of Joshua Whitcomb, Grace church and the other well known scenes in the play were moved back and forth during the first half of their existence, but it is safe to say that 100,000 miles would not be an exaggerated estimate. Probably "The Old Homestead" has, during its entire existence, travelled a distance of at least half a dozen times around the globe. What is more remarkable is the fact that the play has been seen in this country alone and the movements of the various companies presenting it have been restricted to practically the same territory there being indeed but a few, if any, towns of any consequence in the United States that have not been introduced to Josh

Whitecomb, Cy Prime, Aunt Matilda, Happy Jack Rickett Ann, Eb Gaze and all the other familiar characters in "The Old Homestead." For some years there has been only one company presenting the play, as Mr. Denman Thompson is not content unless the play is presented under his immediate supervision, and of course this could not be done if there were several companies.
 At Music Hall Thursday night.

He Does Not Expect to Go to the South Pole

Washington, Nov. 10.—Commander Robert E. Peary, the Arctic explorer, who has taken up his residence with his family in Washington for the winter, is not contemplating an expedition to the South Pole. While the commander stands ready to furnish expert knowledge and advice to any explorer about to embark on a trip to the far south, as he has previously stated, he is not preparing to make any such trip himself.

No Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn or Headache Five Minutes Later

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from Indigestion, Dyspepsia or out-of-order stomach is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking some Diapepsin.

If your Stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the Stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs but a re-enforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak stomachs should take a little Diapepsin occasionally, and there will be no more, Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, Sour risings, Gas on Stomach or Belching of undigested food, Headaches, Dizziness or Sick Stomach, and besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a four, out-of-order stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes after taking a little Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

WATER FOR ORPHANS' HOME

Injunction Obtained to Save the Supply to Water
 Franklin, Nov. 10.—Judge Robert G. Pike of the superior court for Merrimack county has granted an injunction restraining Horace W. Locke of this city from interfering with the course of water from which the New Hampshire Orphan's home derives its supply.

The orphan's home is an incorporated body and through its president, Dr. O. B. Douglas of Concord, it complains that late this fall Mr. Locke, whose land adjoins the home property built a six-foot dam near the reservoir that supplies the institution with water for domestic purposes and for fire protection. The water for the home flows through a small lot of land owned by Locke, and when he erected the dam the supply was cut off.

The complainant alleges that he has never made any use of his dam. They claimed that unless the injunction was granted it would be necessary to close the home for the winter. There are 155 children at the institution.

NEW FIVE-CENT PIECE

Designs Prepared Bearing the Head of Washington

Philadelphia, Penn., Nov. 10.—Dies for a proposed 5 cent piece bearing the head of George Washington, to take the place of the coin now in circulation, have been prepared by the engravers of the United States mint in this city.

Washington refused to allow such a coin to be issued in his lifetime, declaring it to be a monarchial custom. If the government adopts this coin, it will be the first in authorized circulation to bear the head of the first president of the republic.

The adoption of the new design lies with the treasury department and specimens to be struck off soon will be submitted to officials in Washington.

AT DARTMOUTH

Tuesday marked the high water mark in the pilgrimage of coaches to Hanover. The Dartmouth squad had the attention of seven coaches, the most that any Dartmouth team has ever had at one time. The new men to report to Coach Lillard are Fred Jennings of '09 team and Johnny Glaze.

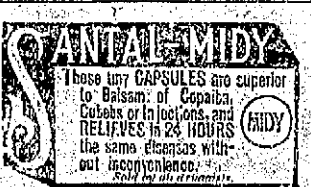

The enlarged coaching staff put new life into the team, which is working day and night to be whipped into shape for Saturday. The practice was a long one, and it was not until darkness that further work was abandoned and they returned to their lockers, only to return to the gym for signal practice at 7:35 p. m.

After the team had warmed up in a 40-minute scrimmage with the freshmen, the varsity was first started on close formation plays through the line. Following a half hour's work at this Quarterback Brady was ordered to release the open game. Forward passes and inside kicks were both tried with various success. Every possible attention is being given to pishon and the rubbers are doctoring his bad ankle throughout the night. But in the case that he will not round into shape for the final game, Boylan is being developed. Boylan received the undivided attention of both Hawley and Glaze during the entire afternoon.

The lineup continues the same, with Sherwin still out practising drop kicking.

WITH STRONG EXPEDITION

Morales Said to Have Landed in San Domingo

BOLD AND ADROIT MOVES

Followers in Porto Rico and St. Thomas Slip Away Under the Very Noses of Watchers—Jimenez Joins in Fight Against Caceres—American Capital Rumored as Flaring in the Revolution

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 10.—Information from San Domingo received here reports ex-President Morales to have landed in that republic with a strong expedition and to be operating with the rebel forces of General Navarro on the frontier between Hayti and Santo Domingo.

Evading the vigilance of the authorities in Porto Rico and Saint Thomas, Morales is reported to have left the latter island on Oct. 24, crossed over to Vieques, where a vessel laden with arms and ammunition and a gathering of his followers awaited him, and after successfully running the gauntlet with the coast-guardsmen in Porto Rico and San Domingo waters to have landed in the republic near the Haytian frontier.

Morales' operations have been executed with considerable boldness and adroitness. For some time past he was known to be conspiring and a close watch was set upon his actions by the San Domingan consuls in this island and St. Thomas, but in spite of this fact he is said to have imported a large supply of arms and ammunition, had them conveyed from St. Thomas to Vieques, where they were shipped on board the vessel chartered for the expedition, notified his followers in Porto Rico and St. Thomas to meet him at the starting point at the proper time and got fairly away before his absence from St. Thomas was discovered. He was accompanied by General Toribio, who sought asylum in St. Thomas a couple of months ago after his defeat by the government troops near La Vega.

A number of San Domingan political refugees residing in this island who were unable to set out with Morales' expedition are reported to have left San Juan last evening on the steamer Ferdinand de Lesseps for Cape Haytien, whence they will proceed across the frontier to join the rebel forces.

It is stated that the long-standing difference existing between ex-presidents Morales and Jimenez has been settled, and that they have joined forces in an effort to overthrow President Caceres' government. They are supported in their design by many of Caceres' followers who have taken exception at the high-handed manner in which Minister Valdesquez has handled the finances of the republic and are angry at their ineffectual efforts to have him removed from office.

It is rumored that the revolution is being financed with American capital. Caceres' followers are said to have circulated the report that Morales and Jimenez are fighting with a view of promoting annexation to the United States, and the followers of the latter retort by accusing the administration of conspiring to turn the republic into an American protectorate; thus both parties are using the fear of American intervention to stimulate their supporters to their greatest effort. Nothing is so abhorrent to the San Domingans as the idea of the loss of national independence and the rule of a foreign power.

PEARY DODGES SOUTH POLE

Explorer's Wife Denies That He Is to Head Expedition

Washington, Nov. 10.—Commander Peary, who has taken up his residence with his family in Washington for the winter, is not contemplating an expedition to the South Pole. While the commander stands ready to furnish expert knowledge and advice to any explorer about to embark on a trip to the far south, he is not preparing to make any such trip himself. Mrs. Peary declared, when informed of a report that the commander would head an expedition to seek the South Pole within the next few years, that she knew positively that this was untrue.

THE STEINHEIL JEWELS

They Force Woman to Relate Things She Has Long Concealed

Paris, Nov. 10.—Mme. Steinheil's little yesterday in the long efforts she is making to shake off the accusation of double murder, was occupied almost entirely in regard to jewels in her possession, jewels of double mystery, where they came from, and where they are now.

There is a mystery in the jewelry possessed by the artist's wife, whose name is connected with the name even of the late French president. These secret friends of high station form whole chapters in the career of the mysterious woman. It is discovered that the jewels are souvenirs of those concealed chapters.

By connecting these jewels with the murders, the prosecution is forcing Mme. Steinheil to relate things which even her family did not know. To save herself from conviction of murder she is telling it all.

She had told that the robbers who, she says, committed the murders, stole her jewelry. The government has learned that certain of these jewels she had herself disposed of, having a jeweler melt them down. She says this was to conceal from her daughter where she got them.

When Jeweler Souley was called Mme. Steinheil fought over his testimony inch by inch. Every jewel that Souley spoke of brought interruptions from Mme. Steinheil. She repeated her story of possessing jewels in duplicate. The advocate general called this statement feeble.

FACTS COULD BE EASILY OBTAINED

Ballinger Takes Exceptions to Statement of Glavis

Washington, Nov. 10.—Secretary Ballinger of the department of the interior issued the following statement: "My attention has been directed to the text of an article purporting to have been written by Mr. L. R. Glavis which is to appear in Collier's Weekly and advance copies of which have been furnished by that weekly to the press. The Glavis story is a tissue of falsehood and insinuations utterly unwarranted, in view of the facts easily obtained by anybody who wants them.

"The statement of Glavis has gained nothing either as to its veracity or justification in the interval since its presentation to the president, and in view of the complete vindication by the president of myself and other officers of the department concerned, I will make no further statement at present."

WORKS IN VAIN OVER DEAD MAN

Hypnotist Fails to Restore Subject From His Spell

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGED

Has Employed Counsel to Fight Case and Will Claim That Man Was Alive When Autopsy Was Performed, Should His Case Come to Trial—Death Declared Due to Rupture of the Aorta

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 10.—Go insistent was "Professor" Arthur Everton, under arrest here for causing the death of Robert Simpson, a subject whom he hypnotized at the Somerville theatre Monday night, that Simpson was merely in a cataleptic state that he was allowed to try unsuccessfully to revive the supposed dead man yesterday afternoon.

In this effort he had the aid of another hypnotist, "Professor" Davenport of Orange, N. J., whom he summoned by telephone.

While the two hypnotists used heroic tests to revive Simpson, three doctors stood by with operating aprons on waiting to perform an autopsy.

Everton was arrested yesterday charged with manslaughter, after he had worn himself out trying to bring Simpson back to life. The autopsy was to have been held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but Everton made such strong pleas for another chance that he was permitted to try it. Before beginning his work of revival with Davenport he explained that he was nervous Monday night and lost his "control."

Only one Somerville man of medicine who examined Simpson was opposed to an immediate autopsy. That man was Dr. Halstead.

"While I am satisfied in my own mind that Simpson was dead," said Halstead, "I am opposed to performing an autopsy so soon. There are authentic cases of extended catalepsy in which the patient was to all appearances dead."

Nevertheless the autopsy was authorized by Chief of Police Hall, County Prosecutor Roger and County Physician Long. The physicians to perform the autopsy last evening were Dr. Long, Dr. McConaughy and a member of the staff of the Somerville hospital.

In view of Everton's contention that Simpson was alive the autopsy will furnish him with the most novel defense upon record should he be indicted by the grand jury and placed on trial for manslaughter.

His contention then will be that Simpson was alive when the doctors cut him up, and that the death of the man should be laid at the door of the dissectors.

Everton has employed counsel and will fight the case. Dr. Quackenbush, professor emeritus of Columbia university and one of the leading authorities on hypnosis in the country, said that it was not unlikely that Simpson's case was a case of suspended animation and that an autopsy should be made with caution, or perhaps deferred until there was no possibility of life. But the examination last night showed that death was due to probably natural causes.

Eight physicians assisted in performing the autopsy and they issued a signed statement at its close stating that death was due to rupture of the aorta, one of the great blood vessels close to the heart. This indicated, according to the coroner, that death was primarily due to natural causes and that the man had probably been suffering for some time from an aneurism or similar affection of the ruptured vessel.

Death was practically instantaneous and evidently occurred just as Simpson was coming out of the trance. Whether the strain he was put under when Everton stood on his body during its rigidity caused the rupture cannot be ascertained.

The result of the autopsy will more than likely bring about Everton's release on bail.

TUMBLER SIXTY FEET

Painters Fall on Marshy Ground and Escape Serious Injury

Hartford, Nov. 10.—By the upsetting of a scaffolding at the home of Ferdinand Hart two painters were hurled down from a capitol, a distance of sixty feet. The ground was soft and marshy, and both escaped serious injury.

Another painter, who was working with them, grabbed a rope as he fell, and remained dangling in midair. Life at once began to cry for help and his chums, having recovered their wits, rushed to the nearest firehouse for aid. A ladder truck responded, and a quick dash was made to the scene of the accident.

The painter was still hanging for dear life. A ladder was quickly raised and he was brought down more scared than hurt.

WARRINER'S SHORTAGE

Treasurer of Big Four Railroad May Have Embezzled $2,000,000

Cincinnati, Nov. 10.—Apparently well founded reports suggest that the shortage of Charles L. Warriner, formerly local treasurer of the Big Four Railroad company, who is now accused of embezzling $643,000, may exceed $1,000,000 and may possibly reach $2,000,000.

These reports are supported by the fact that the railroad officers caused Warriner's arrest on a charge of embezzling $54,500 and later admitted that the amount would be at least $100,000.

When the sum was raised to more than half a million dollars, rumors began to circulate that the total embezzlement might reach a figure which would set a new record in such cases.

ANTI-FITZGERALD MOVEMENT IN HUB

Mayorality Fight Is Assuming Definite Form

Boston, Nov. 10.—The convention of the new municipal organization of 100 met last night under the leadership of Richard Olney, and elected a committee of nine men who will confer with both of the big political committees and present a candidate for mayor to the convention Wednesday of next week. There had been 150 invited by the committee of twenty-five.

The committee is admittedly made up of men who are to be regarded as strong Storrow men. And yet, while friends of Storrow dominated the convention, the name of the candidate for mayor was not once mentioned.

The mayorality committee is to plan meetings with the political leaders before next Wednesday and try to decide upon a candidate to oppose ex-Mayor Fitzgerald.

DURING PLEDGE TO KING

Suffragettes Hurl Stones Through Window of Banquet Hall

London, Nov. 10.—The celebration of the king's 63th birthday and the inauguration of Sir John Knill as lord mayor made London an especially lively centre of interest Tuesday.

The banquet at the Guild hall last night was the scene of a suffragette incident. The lord mayor was responding to the toast to the king, when a crash of glass was heard and a stained glass window fell in fragments into the banquet hall.

Shouts of "votes for women" resounded through the room, causing considerable excitement and some amusement. Two women who had gained the roof and thrown the stones were arrested. Another suffragette in the vestibule was ejected.

Alleged Kidnappers of Anna Connors Refuse to Return to Boston

Providence, Nov. 10.—William J. Porter and wife of Greenwood will make a vigorous fight against being taken to Massachusetts to stand trial for the alleged kidnapping of Anna F. Connors, 13 years old, of Boston.

Inspector Clifford of Boston visited Governor Pothier and presented a request from Governor Draper for extradition papers for the Porters.

Counsel for the Porters objected to his clients being taken to Boston, and Governor Pothier confirmed the matter. The Connors child disappeared Oct. 1 from her home.

"WHOLE STORY" TOLD BY HILL

Admits That Amelia St. Jean Died In His Office

HE DISMEMBERED BODY

Saw He Made an Awful Mistake After He Had Cut Off One of the Legs, but There Was Nothing to Do but Go Ahead—Missing Head, Rings and Locket Are Found Where He Placed Them

Tamilton, Mass., Nov. 10.—Frank L. Hill, the Fall River skid and hoist doctor, through a confession read in Judge Stevens' court here, where he was arraigned to plead to the indictment of manslaughter, cleared the mystery that shrouded the pitiful death of Amelia St. Jean at Fall River by confessing that she died in his office and that he cut up her body and distributed it in Tiverton and in that city.

Hill retracted his former plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. Hill's attorney, Frank J. Higgins, said:

"We pleaded not guilty in the lower court because we knew that there was not sufficient evidence to hear out the claim of murder; that at the very most manslaughter could be charged. Now that the charge has been changed we are prepared to tell the whole story."

Hill told where he had hung the head and hidden two rings and the locket of the dead girl, and the missing head and the articles of jewelry were found just where he said they had been left.

The girl's head was found in the grass on Robeson street, Fall River, opposite St. Patrick's Cathedral, at the foot of the hill. It was wrapped in a black skirt of the victim. The locket and rings were found in a corner of an old house off Bay street road, not far from where the clothing of the girl had been hidden. The police had searched this house, but had failed to discover the locket and rings. Nobody, however, had ever searched in the vicinity of the cemetery for the head.

Hill declared that the girl died as the result of an attempt on her part to treat herself in his office. He said that she fell in a faint on the floor and that he had tried for more than two hours to revive her, but failed.

Then, he said, in a frenzy of fear, when he found that the body was getting cold, he began to cut it up. He cut off one of the girl's legs first. Then he said he saw that he had made an awful mistake, but there was nothing to do but to go ahead.

Hill mentioned Munroe, the letter carrier, only in his statement. He said that Munroe sent the girl to him. Hill was taken back to New Bedford and locked up. He will be sentenced in a few days.

FORTUNE TO BRICKLAYER

Detectives Searching For Bostonian Who Is Held to $250,000

Pittsburg, Nov. 10.—James J. Corbett, a bricklayer, and said to be a Bostonian, is held to $250,000. Only a few days ago he was in McKeesport looking for work. All that is necessary for him to do is to get into communication with a Boston attorney and the money will be turned over to him.

The fortune has been left him by his brother, William J. Corbett, who died a few days ago.

Upon the death of William J. Corbett the case was put in the hands of William H. Scharton of Boston, who has private detectives searching for Corbett.

WOMEN CAST BIG VOTE

It May Upset a School Election In a New Jersey Town

Asbury Park, N. J., Nov. 10.—Women's votes may upset the legality of a school election held at Bradley Beach, near here. Opponents of woman suffrage maintain that more women's than men's votes were cast for the authorization of an $85,000 issue of school bonds recently.

They assert that the issue was carried against the best judgment of the masculine part of the community. The dispute is to be carried into the courts.

Oral Betting Held Legal

Albany, Nov. 10.—Oral betting does not constitute bookmaking within the meaning of the so-called anti-racing track gambling laws. This is the effect of the decision of the court of appeals, affirming an order of the lower courts for the discharge from custody of two men who were indicted on a charge of bookmaking.

TUTTLE TO RETIRE

Mellen Will Assume Presidency of Boston and Maine Railroad

Boston, Nov. 10.—Charles S. Mellen will at the next meeting of the directors of the Boston and Maine railroad be elected its president, to succeed Lucius Tuttle, who will retire. That meeting will take place next Tuesday. No formal or definite action was taken at yesterday's meeting. A bylaw intervened to prevent. But the plans were in readiness, and unless some wholly unforeseen circumstance arises to frustrate them will be carried out next week.

It may be taken for granted that Tuttle's withdrawal will carry with it that of two directors, Edgar J. Rich and Earl A. Ryder. Ryder has been the clerk of the corporation and Rich its general solicitor. Under the bylaws the election of directors to fill their places must go over one week.

Under this program the New Haven's dominance of the Boston and Maine system, but thinly disguised in the recently enacted holding bill, comes clearly out into the open.

TAFT'S LITTLE JOKE

He Tells Tarhecia That They Beat Boston in Its Tea Party

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 10.—There was a quiet flap at Boston made by President Taft during a banquet here last night, when, referring to North Carolina's share in the Revolutionary war, he said:

"I understand that you suppressed the stamp tax and emptied out the tea very considerable time before they beat that tea party in Boston harbor."

His 13,000-mile journey through thirty-three states and territories all but concluded, President Taft left for Richmond, where he will stop today until late afternoon, leaving then for Washington to spend the night at home in the White House.

ELEVEN MEN DROWN AS TWO SHIPS SINK

But Two Survivors of Crash Off Block Island

Block Island, R. I., Nov. 10.—Two ships under full sail crashed into each other off here just after midnight Sunday and both sank in a few minutes. Only two Filipino sailors, neither of whom can speak English, were saved out of both crews, which comprised thirteen men altogether.

The collision was between the British barkentine John S. Bennett, from New York to Halifax with a big cargo of coal, and the four-masted schooner Merrill C. Hart, from Thomaston, Me., for New York, laden with stone. There were eight men in the crew of the John S. Bennett. A crew of five men were carried on board the Merrill C. Hart.

Meagre details were secured from Captain Bullock of the schooner William Jones, which picked up the two Filipinos, members of the Bennett's crew. Bullock said that about 1 o'clock Monday morning as he was passing Block Island he made out a vessel's lights near at hand. He approached close enough to speak her and her captain hailed him, begging for assistance. "We have been in collision and are sinking," came the cry of the Bennett's skipper.

Captain Bullock at once brought his ship about and made ready to get out a boat to go to the rescue of the barkentine's crew. Before the boat could be lowered into the water, however, the Bennett had vanished beneath the surface.

this evening as possible and it will take about an hour's time. The three inch battery will be used, and the new projectile tracers will be used for the first time. This is an invention by which the flight of the projectile can be followed from the gun to the target.

The target, which will be anchored off several thousand yards from the fort, will be picked up by the search light from Fort Stark.

Captain Robert M. McBride, the commanding officer at the fort, has taken every precaution against damage to shipping. Warning has been sent out through the press, so that all shipping should be informed of the date of the practice. In addition the patrol boats, with red lights, will be stationed at each side of the target field, and shipping warned in this way. CAME TO GRIEF

Cooper, the Globe Trotter, Has a Bad Case of Ankle Sprain

Portsmouth, Me., Nov. 10.—Cyrus W. Cooper, the youthful pedestrian who on Nov. 3 made a start from this city on a wager, so he says, with a Boston paper to make a tour of the United States visiting all of the state capitals, returned last night with a sprained ankle and in need of medical attention, and is thus forced to forego his trip for the time being at least. According to the terms of his wager he was to cover a specified distance before visiting Augusta and had reached a town within 35 miles of Augusta when the accident happened. He was plodding along when he turned his ankle owing to the frozen condition of the road. He paid little attention to the injury, but tried to continue on his way. The pain became so intense that he had to crawl some few miles to a farm house where he put up for the night and the next day was taken in a team to the railroad line. He, according to the terms of the wager, started out broke, but claims that he struck good luck and had $3.40 ahead of the game when the accident occurred. This, with other donations, he used to defray the trip by railroad to this city. Arriving last night, he applied at the police station for medical aid and was attended by the city physician. He started this morning for his home in Newtonville, Mass., and intends when he has recovered to make a fresh start.

Death of the Oldest Resident

Golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Fogg

Exeter Girl to Marry a Man from Kittery

Exeter, Nov. 11.—Miss Emmeline N. McNeal, Exeter's oldest resident, died on Tuesday in her 94th year. She was born in Newfields, but had lived here since childhood. She was the senior member of the Baptist church and a most estimable woman. Her husband, Gilman M. McNeal, died more than sixty years ago, and she long outlived her four children. She leaves six grandchildren about thirty great grandchildren, and a few great great grandchildren.

Tuesday was the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Fogg, who informally received many friends at their home on upper Front street. They received many remembrances, among them one especially pleasing to Mrs. Fogg, fifty yellow chrysanthemums from Moses N. Collins Relief corps, of which she is a charter member. A collation of ice cream, cake and other light refreshments was served. Arrangements for the celebration were made by Mrs. James E. S. Pray, a niece of Mr. Fogg. Mr. Fogg was born in Epping, Dec. 19, 1831, but has resided in Exeter since 1850, when he began to learn the carriage maker's trade under the late Orlin Head. He was long a carriage manufacturer and afterwards conducted a shop for carriage repairing. In the official life of Exeter Mr. Fogg, a staunch Republican, has been very prominent. He was representative in 1882 and then followed three years as selectman. He long served as supervisor and up on the police force. He was a deputy under Sheriff Joseph Morse. For forty years Mr. Fogg was connected with the fire department as captain of the Cataract Hand Engine company, captain of the Hook and Ladder company and as assistant engineer. July 29, 1861, Mr. Fogg enlisted in Company D, Third New Hampshire regiment, was quickly promoted from the ranks to second lieutenant and then to first lieutenant. He was discharged in May, 1863, for malarial fever contracted in South Carolina. He was a charter member of Moses N. Collins post, Grand Army of the Republic and is the senior member of the Star in the East lodge, A. F. and A. M., which he joined in 1857. He has a half brother, Lewis E. Fogg of Keene. On Nov. 9, 1859 Mr. Fogg was married in Exeter by Rev. James J. Perle, pastor of the Baptist church, to Mary Emma Willis of Exeter. She is a member of Orient chapter, O. E. S., and of the Relief corps.

The marriage of Harlow A. Parsons of Kittery, Me., and Miss Elizabeth H. Bowler is appointed for Thursday noon.

With the close of the football season began the prescribed work of the academy gymnasium.

Charles H. Harvey of the News-Letter composing room, has enlisted in the navy.

The Woman's Missionary society of the two Congregational churches held a thanks offering meeting on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. S. H. Dana at the Phillips church parsonage.

Mrs. Katherine H. Davis, superintendent of the home department of the First church Sunday school since its organization, has resigned. Miss Lucetta L. Driver is her successor.

ANOTHER

ARREST AT FALL RIVER

Fall River, Nov. 10.—Following the confession of "Dz." Frank Hill in the court house at Taunton, embracing the details of the dismemberment and disposal of the body of Amelia St. Jean, the arrest of an accessory to the crime which it is believed was committed before the girl's death is confidently expected here today.

An autopsy on the head of the St. Jean girl is being made today by Medical Examiner Gunning of Fall River, Medical Examiner Magrath of Boston, Dr. John W. Coughlin of Fall River and Medical Examiner Silmon of Fiverton, R. I., in order to learn the actual cause of death.

Not one of the three surgeons believes Hill's story of the manner in which the girl died. He said in his confession that the girl fell in a faint while trying to perform an operation which he had refused to perform at her request, and that she died without regaining consciousness. The surgeons say that the autopsy on the body did not disclose any traces of such an operation as Hill says the girl tried to perform. While none of them would say what the autopsy on the head may disclose, a remark let drop by one of them indicates that they look to for a condition of the brain showing that she was under the influence of an anaesthetic when death occurred. The inference then will be that the anaesthetic was administered by Hill. "Amelia St. Jean's heart was developed no more than that of a child of ten," said one of the surgeons, "and a small quantity of chloroform would cause her death."

The findings of the autopsy on the head may be of the gravest importance to Hill as affecting the penalty which the court will impose. His lawyers have asked for a light sentence on the charge of manslaughter, the maximum penalty for which is imprisonment for twenty years. Should the autopsy indicate that he has not told the truth in his confession, it is not impossible that his lawyers' plea for clemency would have less effect with the court than if the confession were to go uncontradicted.

The hair of the head was found dressed as the girl had worn it in life, and this indicates that there was no struggle for life before life left her.

FUNERAL OF MCCONNELL

The funeral of George McConnell, who died from scalds received in the accident on the North Dakota, was held at ten o'clock this morning in the chapel at H. W. Nickerson's undertaking rooms. Rev. L. H. Thayer, D. D., conducted the service. Burial was in Harmony Grove cemetery.

A delegation of workmen from the Fore River Shipbuilding works of Quincy, Mass., came to the funeral, and members of the delegation served as bearers.

Our Idea in Advertising

Is not so much to sell a Suit or Overcoat as it is to get a customer. There is a big difference between selling a man a suit and getting him for a regular customer.

But our object is to sell a man such a good suit the first time that he comes back for another one next season, and keeps coming back until he gets the habit of coming—a habit that he finds too good to break.

There are many things about our Suits and Overcoats that we could tell you, but long years of experience tells us, that a satisfied customer is one of the best advertisements a Tailor can have.

Let us make you a Suit or Overcoat this season.

PLEADS FOR MERCY

Mme. Steinhilf Makes Dramatic Appeal to the Jury.

Paris, Nov. 10.—"Have pity on me! I am an unhappy woman who should not be tortured!" cried Mme. Steinhilf on the resumption of her trial Tuesday for the murder of her husband and stepmother, during the testimony of the jeweler with reference to the changes of jewelry confined to them by the prisoner, which she originally claimed had been stolen by the assassins.

The prosecuting judge responded that the accused always repeated that cry when she was embarrassed for an answer. Mme. Steinhilf admitted anew that she had had certain jewels, the gifts of her admirers, melted, but she maintained that this was done to keep them from the knowledge of her daughter.

REPLANTING
IN CHINA

In considering the progress of the almost world-wide movement for the protection of forests, an interesting review has just been made of the work in China—a country which is so often cited as an example of the evil effects of deforestation.

In a portion of the Celestial Kingdom earnest efforts are now being made to re-establish a forest cover by planting. Consul Wilbur T. Gracey of Tsingtau, China, reports that the Germans in that region are making successful attempts at reforestation. The success of the work was practically assured at the start, for to Germany is given the credit for having the highest developed system of forestry, and it was natural to expect that the long experience in forest work in the Fatherland would lend preliminary experimentation and hasten progress in China.

When Tsingtau was occupied by the Germans about eleven years ago the hills were found bare and barren, with only a sporadic growth of scrub pine and weeds. Plans for reforestation were at once made, and about 2,865 acres have already been planted. About half of this is planted in acacias, the balance in pine, larch, walnut oak, maples and alders. So successful has this planting been that the point has already been reached where the sale of timber can be made. Small branches are sold for fire wood and some of the timber is used for the mining purposes. The sale and operation of acacia is expected to become a considerable source of revenue during the next few years.

It is particularly remarkable that this work should have been so successful in view of the difficulties to which the plantation was subjected. The rainfall is light and lack of moisture considerably retarded the development of the trees. By far the worst enemies, however, were insects. Various species of caterpillars and other insects have been so destructive that thousands of Chinese boys and women are now engaged annually to destroy them. Various measures of prevention have been tried, such as placing girdles of glue on the trees, but these have not been effective and it was found necessary to resort to a systematic destruction of the insects by hand.

In 1908 over seven million caterpillars were gathered by hand, smashed, covered with lime, and afterward used as fertilizer. This method has been successful in protecting the greater part of the plantations, but on the mountains on the border of the territory the trees are eaten bare. Acacias appear to withstand the attacks of the insects better than any other species; and the summits of the mountains are now being planted with these trees in an effort to check future destruction. In addition to these enemies, Chinese thieves are another source of difficulty, and on one occasion a band of thirty-six thieves was captured in the act of stealing wood.

In spite of these drawbacks, however, the work has been so successful that the Chinese government is now undertaking forestry schemes in a number of places under advice from German experts. This work centers about Mukden, Manchuria where success has already been obtained with acacias and experiments are now being made with other trees. The first Chinese forest school was established at Mukden two years ago. Six hundred and twenty-five acres have already been set apart for cultivation and 24,710 acres are to be purchased for afforestation.

Three large mines in China, in the provinces of Chihli and Shansi, which are under the management of Europeans, are making plans for afforestation, and the Shantung railway is planting acacias along 200 miles of track. This, however, is simply a beginning of the work, and the Chinese government now has in contemplation the inauguration of extensive afforestation work in different parts of China.

BALLINGER AGAIN UNDER FIRE Denies Story of Glavis About Coal Lands and Frauds.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Sec. Richard A. Ballinger of the department of the interior on Tuesday issued the following statement:

"My attention has been directed to the text of an article purporting to have been written by Mr. J. R. Glavis which is to appear in Collier's Weekly, and advance copies of which have been furnished by the weekly to the press.

"The Glavis story is a tissue of falsehood and insinuations utterly unwarranted in view of the fact, easily ascertained by anybody who wants to know.

"It is not surprising that a publication which could, in pursuit of this mere propaganda, recklessly, under date of Oct. 30, reproduce a view appearing on a familiar railroad folder of the Grand river canyon in Colorado, as a picture of available power site which was in danger of untimely acquisition on the South Platte river, 200 miles away and across the continental divide, should be willing, without the slightest effort to ascertain the real facts to give wings to a story which had hitherto been submitted to so great and just a man as the President of the United States, who after a most careful consideration thereof, in which he had before him the entire files of the general land office and of the secretary of the interior, relating to each and every one of the matters presented, pronounced the same disingenuous and without justification.

"The statement of Glavis has gained nothing either as to his veracity or justification in the interval since its presentation to the President, and in view of the complete vindication by the President of myself and other officers of the department concerned, I will make no further statement at present."

Mrs. Pankhurst in America.

The visit to New York of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the militant English suffragettes, calls attention anew to the difference between American and British suffrage methods. Mrs. Pankhurst excuses the violence employed by her party on the ground that it is necessary to break the press boycott; that they could not get publicity without resorting to sensationalism, and without publicity they could not make their cause a vital issue. She says further that they acted on the advice of former Premier Balfour. It would be unkind to suggest that Mr. Balfour shrewdly advised this move to embarrass the liberal government. Granting his good faith, was his counsel wise? It has resulted in sending a large number of leading Englishwomen to jail, but has it advanced the cause of suffrage? Whatever may be the answer as to England, it certainly is true that such violence would not have helped votes for women in America. Indeed, such a situation would have been impossible here.

Perhaps Mrs. Pankhurst's most telling point in her Carnegie hall address was her appeal to men. After recounting the battles men had fought to gain their rights she said, addressing men collectively, "What would you do in our place?" The question, of course, brought a storm of applause, but sober second thought dissipates its force. Right in Mrs. Pankhurst's own country of England manhood suffrage has been much extended in the past century and without such sensational and violent scenes as have attended the Pankhurst style of campaign. But even if men had used force, does it follow that woman should employ the same weapon? Can she not make her highest and most effective appeal in a more gentle and winning way?

A life insurance company cashier in New York stole $4,000. That used to be about the price of a lunch in the days when Jim Hagen Hyde was in the business and doing the town.

We see now that it is only an imaginary boundary line and nothing at all resembling a real barrier that separates the republics that border on the Rio Grande.

The Latest on American Gingseng. United States Vice Consul General Fuller writes as follows from Hongkong on the ginseng trade at that port:

The imports of ginseng into Hongkong in 1908 are estimated at 135,000 pounds. Ginseng is a free port. A considerable proportion of this was imported by Chinese jehing houses here, which purchased it from the United States through their own Chinese connections in small quantities. There are Chinese drug jobbers in New York city, Chicago and San Francisco all of whom purchase this commodity. It is not possible to correspond with most Chinese firms in America, nor would they be likely to deal with any one with whom they did not have a personal acquaintance.

Ginseng is sold here by jobbers to retailers on the basis of the pound of 134.3 pounds. It is usually classified in four qualities. For the poorest quality, the jobbers get about $2.50 Hongkong currency ($40 American currency) per catty, running up to $10.00 Hongkong currency per catty for the best quality. The prices paid by jobbers here to producers or jobbers in the United States are said to vary widely, and the business is understood to be highly speculative.

Up to the present time there has been only one foreign firm here dealing in ginseng to any extent. This firm has offices in Hongkong and in New York city. Another firm is starting to look into the business and would be glad to correspond direct with producers in the United States.

Particulars may be obtained by addressing the bureau of manufactures, Washington.

Mrs. Pankhurst takes pride in the fact that she was born on an anniversary of the fall of the Bastille. She comes of a family of British radicals, and in her youth she was some time under the influence of Henri Rochefort, the French radical. She has been an agitator for thirty odd years. Noise, obstruction and agitation are bread and butter to her. She says it would be hard work for her not to be doing anything.

As a creator—in part—of the Kongo Free State we undoubtedly have responsibilities, but they should be assumed, if at all, in conjunction with all the other nations responsible for that act.

While not among the very greatest in the list of Federal commanders, the late General O. O. Howard stood high in the second rank as a most capable, brave and conscientious officer. Taft's Trip at the Ending. The chief magistrate has been enthusiastically received in every city, town or hamlet where he has appeared, and he returns to the capital as popular as when he departed from it for the short voyage of crossing the transcontinental line. The trip was undertaken to give the citizens the pleasure of meeting, seeing and hearing the president of the United States. It has been a complete success. Millions of his countrymen have enjoyed these pleasures, and no doubt the president is gratified by the good will of the populace so generally and generously extended to him.

If the journey was made to acquire information upon the live topics affecting the nation and to obtain the sense of the people as to policies and men there is no doubt that so close and keen an observer as is the president obtained many material facts from those he met and conversed with. But Judge Taft will find his labors in the White House increased by the multitude of affairs he has discussed and suggested that there be action upon.

Mrs. Pankhurst is going to exert "pressure on the government." That is the way they work for equal suffrage in England. We have no government, federal, state or municipal, which can help the women to get votes, but we have large numbers of government officials who find the vital issues of the hour sufficiently harassing. Nevertheless freedom of speech prevails. Mrs. Pankhurst may talk all she wants to.

PORTSMOUTH AT BOSTON'S GREAT FIRE

This paper has this week given a list of the men who went from Portsmouth to Boston and helped save the old South church in the fire of Nov. 9-10, 1872.

Mrs. C. F. Shillaber shows us a book recently published by Houghton, Mifflin and Company, of Boston, and written by Harold Murdock, Esq., of that city in which that great event in Boston's history is told as in the form of letters from a Boston man to a friend, at the time of the fire.

"This handsome book tells of a tramp through the city at dawn and in one place says: 'The Old South had evidently been through a wrenching, and as I stepped across to ask the engineer where he hailed from I read 'Kearsarge, Portsmouth, N. H.' on the boiler plate. Do you know, it gave me the sort of thrill that I haven't felt since the first year of the war. At that minute Portsmouth seemed more remote to me than Timbuctoo and if the engine had come from the moon it would hardly have produced a stronger impression. A tall fellow standing near me, who claimed to have been 'raised down Portsmouth way' said that the steamer had come from New Hampshire an hour before in the very nick of time. Two or three streams were playing from the street when a brand from the Transcript building blew across and lodged in the bellery. The slats were soon smoking, the streams fell short and there were no ladders at hand. As Kearsarge came up Washington street her fires lit, steam was up and the men reeled off their hose with a will. There was great excitement in the crowd when the first water came at the nozzle, and as the stream soared higher men fairly stood on tiptoe. Then the water broke in through the slats and out went the fire. I wish I had seen it.'"

Further on the book several times mentions the good work of the Kearsarge company before the time came to return home.

PEOPLES' OPINIONS

Retiring Firemen

The Lynn board of aldermen, at a recent meeting amended the fire ordinance, it provides that a permanent man who has reached the age of 65 years, and who has been a member 20 years or more may be placed on the retired list on half pay.

How long would a permanent man have to serve in this city or what age would he have to reach to be retired on half pay?

A majority of the people in this city have no thoughts of the firemen except when the alarm sounds and not then unless the fire is near them and they are liable to get scorched.

The old adage still proves true in this city which is "When fire is cried and danger is nigh God and the firemen's the cry."

"But when the fire is quenched and all things righted God is forgot and the firemen slighted."

OLD FIREMAN.

Col. Stoddley who lately moved from Blint to Kittery is fast becoming interested in the affairs of the town, but declines to be quoted from a political standpoint.

EMULATED CHAMPION JOHNSON

A big strapping colored sailor of the merchant service, with his skin full of liquid dynamite, went wild in the depot on Tuesday afternoon and for a time had everybody on the dodge.

He was bound for Portland and, before purchasing his pasteboard, he filled up to the eyebrows and wanted to fight everybody who came in sight.

One of his shipmates, who attempted to make peace, was winged and nearly put to sleep from the fist of the crazy emulator of colored champion Johnson.

When nobody was within his reach he satisfied himself by punching at the seabags on the baggage truck.

His shipmates attempted to land him on the cashbound train, but it was no use and the train moved on without him.

Officer West came along and the fighter was piled into a job wagon and taken to the police station. The rest of the story is told in the police court record of today.

THE PISCATAQUA DOCK MYSTERY

Nobody Drowned but One Man's Feelings Were Harrowed

On Oct. 18, a lot of excitement occurred on the Piscataqua wharf and just what took place there has been a mystery to more than one person and above all to the crew of the tug boat Piscataqua, which was tied up there at that time.

Cook Day of the tug was certain he heard the splash, followed by a groan, which satisfied him that somebody was drowned that night in the cold waters of the river.

Cook Day of the tug did hear the splash and the groan, but it was not Willis Alvin or anybody else and all the alarm was caused by the work of a joker.

The parties who figured in the mystery are now revealing the facts, which are that a staging was thrown in the dock close by the tug and the cook, rushing out expecting to rescue the man, heard groans of the party in the river, but could see no one. The splash he heard was the staging as it struck the water and the groans were from the jokers hiding on the dock.

There is no need of any further detective work or alarm about the Piscataqua dock mystery.

POLICE COURT

Sailor Pays $11.90 for His Sport at the Depot.

James Haywood, the colored seaman, who conducted a rough house in the depot on Tuesday afternoon was up before Judge Simes in police court today, when the finishing touches were put on Jim's outfit. His jag of the day before had faded and his waking up on the soft side of a pine board in his bunk this morning caused him to reflect. He could not get himself together clearly, and told the court that his memory was mostly a blank. He had no recollection of making those barn yard swipes at passengers on the platform, but did remember that somebody filled him up with aguardiente and there must have been trouble.

After hunting up $11.90 he was escorted to the depot by the police and put aboard for Portland, where he started for on Tuesday.
